What can we offer: Pragmatic and straight-forward intellectual property (IP) advice at special rates regarding the protection of intellectual property and contractual agreements needed to tackle the challenges of SARS-CoV-2 and Covid-19.

Our life-science patent attorneys Dr. Meikel Diepholz and Dr. Daniel Schaft have extensive expertise in relation to technologies highly relevant for addressing several of the imminent diagnostic, therapeutic and prophylactic needs associated with the Covid-19 pandemic.

In particular, in relation to nucleotide detection technologies and assays, antibody design and production technologies, design and production of immuno-therapeutics, including combination vaccines, as well as immune-response-based diagnostic assays and personalized medicines but also in relation to the design and production of related devices such as, e.g. immunohistochemistry staining incubation chambers, microfluidic devices and bioreactors used in the production of recombinant proteins.

In addition, our firm bundles extensive knowledge regarding patenting of MedTech-related inventions.

What are we looking for: We want to do our part in overcoming this crisis by supporting the initiatives of the life-science and MedTech communities tackling SARS-CoV-2 and Covid-19 head on.
